$600,000 WINEHAVEN DEAL RUMORED NEAR

CALWA CONCERN TO DISPOSE OF LOCAL WINERY

Buyer of Plant Unknown; To Be Used For New Industrial Unit

A $600,000 deal for the sale of the Winehaven plant here is expected to be consummated before the end of the week, officials of the Calwa company admitted yesterday.

Although the sale is not yet consummated, it is almost certain to be, and definite news of the final agreement is expected within a week, when a purchaser and exact amount of purchase price will be disclosed, thus ending a long succession of dealings for the valuable property on upper San Francisco bay, between various companies and Calwa company.

For Industrial Site

The present prospective purchaser is understood to be a buyer not hitherto mentioned, and it proposes to use Winehaven for industrial purposes. Last January rumors joined the Standard Oil company of California in a negotiation and later on a large cannery concern was said to be looking toward acquisition of the old winery and land adjoining.

Meager details of the present purchase include the statement that while the price is not all for cash, the agreement calls for a good deal of cash, and to all intents and purposes, it is a cash sale. Were all cash to be secured, this would mean more than $8 a share for the 73,934 outstanding shares of the company in liquidation dividend. Total liquidation dividends to date amount to $22 a share, while the California Wine Association has paid out $97 in liquidation.

Other Properties

With the sale of Winehaven, the Calwa Company will own four other parcels of realty. These include two warehouses in Brooklyn and New York worth, according to the officials $200,000, and two small warehouses at Napa and Fresno, worth the officials say about $35,000. The Eastern warehouses still contain wine, which it is believed will be closed out within one or two years. All the properties are for sale.

California Wine Association transferred its realty assets to Calwa company March 16, 1926, retaining all wine, cooperages, machinery and good will.

Court Dismisses Charge As Actress Prepares To Defend Self

(By Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, June 22.—Taking the stand late today in Judge Burnell's court, Dorothy Mackaye proved a star witness in her own defense.

A death bed reconciliation with Ray Raymond her estranged husband was described by the actress who emphatically denied the state's charges that she conspired with Dr. W. J. Sullivan to conceal facts surrounding Raymond's death.

Miss Mackaye's direct examination was brief. She was undergoing cross examination at adjournment. There will be no session tomorrow.

LOS ANGELES, June 22—Skies long overcast, brightened today for Dorothy Mackaye, the actress, on trial charged with concealing the circumstances of the death of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy star for whose fatal beating Paul Kelly, film actor, is under a one to ten year manslaughter sentence.

A ruling by Judge Charles Burnell wiped away half the charges against the actress as she was preparing to take the stand in her own defense.

Shows No Emotion

Showing no outward emotion, Miss Mackaye heard the court order striking out the count in the grand jury indictment charging her with being an accessory to Dr. Walter J. Sullivan, Hollywood physician, in hushing up the circumstances of the death of her husband after the fight between Kelly and Raymond over her affections. Dr. Sullivan is yet to be tried on charges similar to those brought against Miss Mackaye.

Acquittal Seen

Miss Mackaye's trial is being continued on the remaining count of the indictment, charging her with conspiring with Dr. Sullivan to conceal the details of Raymond's death. The dismissal of the one count, in the opinion of followers of the case, greatly enchances the prospects of Miss Mackaye's acquittal.

After the prosecution had closed its case, Jerry Geisler, of counsel for Miss Mackaye, moved for the dismissal of the accessory count. Following a lengthy argument between counsel, Judge Burnell granted the motion, saying the state had introduced no evidence to show that the actress had acted to conceal the facts of Raymond's death after the asserted "cover up" conspiracy with Dr. Sullivan in which she is accused of paying the physician $500 obtained from Kelly.

Actress In Black

Miss Mackaye, clad in black, relieved only by white piping, stared straight ahead and toyed with her silver vanity case as she

SEARCH FOR LOST SON IS FUTILE

After spending a year in Richmond hoping to find some trace of their eldest son, Alfred C. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams left last Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. George and their son, Roy, for Vancouver, British Columbia. The Williams have not heard from their son for several years. After a few months in Vancouver, they will return to their home in London.

BRITISH PLANS AROUSE IRE OF U. S. DELEGATE

Complete Destruction Of U. S. Sea Power Seen In Geneva Parley

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, June 22. Early collapse of the Geneva Arms Conference unless Great Britain accepts the limitations for warships suggested by the United States is confidently expected in high official quarters here.

U. S.-British Clash

The British proposals are so at variance with the American requirements for national defense that they can not be seriously considered, it was declared at the State Department.

In view of this it was freely stated that unless the British shortly discard their proposals, designed to make the American navy much inferior, there is no alternative except for the delegates to come home.

U. S. Shows Spirit

On this subject the State Department today showed more spirit if not temper, than has been displayed in any international situation in years. The emphatic statement was made that the American plan for the further limitation of naval armaments is the utmost concession which this government is willing to make.

Whether the British give under pressure or the threat from the United States to launch a building program is in doubt, officials declare. The impression is that they will not, or that if they do decide to make some minor concessions, these will be still so far from the American view as to be unacceptable.

Officials were frankly amazed and irate today when a more complete study of the British proposal revealed just what it would mean to American sea power. It was pointed out that it would completely destroy our cruiser and airplane carrier building program and that it would give the British the undisputed mastery of the sea. It would arm the British and materially disarm the United States, it was declared.

The proposal of Japan is regarded as not being so far from that of this country and there is hope that the two governments could come to terms. But there is said to be no disposition to enter into a treaty arrangement with that country alone.

Navigation Co. Increases Service

With the completion of dredging of the channel of the Richmond Navigation and Improvement company, headed by Captain H. P. Lauritzen, to a depth of 12 feet, an improved service for the transportation of freight will be inaugurated between San Francisco and Richmond, beginning Saturday it was announced yesterday.

Two round trips daily will be made between San Francisco and Richmond, leaving San Francisco at 12 o'clock noon, and at 5 p. m.

The work of dredging has been done through equipment of Captain Lauritzen.

AT HOTEL CARQUINEZ

New arrivals at the Hotel Carquinez yesterday were as follows T. F. Dealy of San Francisco; Lee Van Cundy of Fresno; P. Doane of Fresno; Mrs. W. H. Bird of Passadena and Mrs. Florence B. Calmer of Pasadena.

SAN PABLO SCHOOL BOND BIDS CALLED

The Board of Supervisors will receive bids for the purchase of bonds of the San Pablo school district to the amount of $35,000 Monday, July 18, at 11 o'clock a. m. it was announced yesterday.

The bonds run for the period of 10 years, bear interest at 5 percent, and are in denominations of $1000 each.

The assessed valuation of the district is $1,192,860; the only outstanding indebtedness is a total of $17,000.

Money derived from the sale of the bonds will be used to erect a new school building.

$490 PRICE OF NEW FORD CAR

The new car planned by Henry Ford will sell at $490 and not $550 as previously rumored, according to reports in New York yesterday. The car, it is said, is to be a four cylinder model, with the principal changes in the body and running gear rather than in the engine parts.

This looks as if it would not mean much as a competitor of General Motors, except as regards the Chevrolet, which is the only G. M. car in the price class of the new Ford.

Cutter Dogs Rum Ship To Prevent Cargo Landing

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—"We will starve you out" says the crew of the United States Coast Guard Cutter Cahokia to the crew of the notorious rum-runner Malahat, both ships being 600 miles off the coast of San Luis Obispo. The Cahokia is provisioned for forty days and is determined to starve the Malahat into submission.

"If you try to starve us out, we will see you die of thirst," answers the Malahat by megaphone to the crew of the cutter Cahokia. We still have some 10,000 cases of the real stuff aboard and you can sink or swim, live or die, be still or scream."

In the meantime, the Malahat may decide to depart for Shanghai or some other port where the price is not so big, but where she may unload the rest of her cargo with a profit left since she is thought to have already landed 10,000 cases on the shores of California at present bootleg prices.

The Malahmat has already offered to trade some real pre-war stuff for some healthy hot groceries, it is said.

Martin Found Guilty Of Embezzlement

MARTINEZ, June 22. Julius C. Martin, former El Cerrito real estate dealer, was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses, by a jury in the Court of Superior Judge H. V. Alvarado here today. A verdict was rendered on the first ballot. Sentence will be passed next Monday.

Martin was charged with having appropriated $500 given to him by John Capra, San Pablo dairyman, as payment on a lot.

Harbor Expert To Gather Data Needed To Further Local Harbor Resurvey

To gather accurate data on Richmond harbor for the consideration of the United States engineers of Richmond's application for a resurvey of the harbor providing for wider and deeper channels and turning basins as planned under the proposed harbor bond issue which came before the citizens August 23rd, the directors of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce unanimously voted to employ H. G. Butler, a recognized expert, and whose name was suggested by Major John W. N. Schultz, as competent to make a careful analysis of tonnage freight rates, and other data necessary.

The cost of Butler's employment will be divided between the City of Richmond, the Chamber of Commerce and the Parr Terminal company. Butler has done similar work for Oakland, San Francisco, Monterey, Stockton, and other cities which have sought government aid in their harbor development.

Outcome Of Conference

Butler's employment followed a special meeting of the harbor committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Harbor Committee of the Richmond city council and was the outcome of the conference held with General Deakyne, chief of the army engineers in Washington. Councilman W. W. Scott and Fred Parr in May and a luncheon with Major Schultz in San Francisco a few days ago.

Expert Needed

In making his recommendation that Butler be employed, E. B. Bull, chairman of the harbor committee said that it was absolutely necessary that an expert report be prepared to guide the decision of the army engineers. Parr added to this by explaining that Butler would estimate what commerce should normally pass through Richmond harbor and secure written assurance from the various industries as to what shipments they could be legitimately be expected to make by water as well as making a careful study of freight rates and tariff adjustments which prove most economical to industry and the community.

The report will be turned in to the City Council which, in turn, will forward it to the United States engineers board in Washington as part of its plea for a resurvey of Richmond's harbor needs. Congressman Charles F. Curry has already assured Richmond that he will do all he can to help Richmond get a new survey that its harbor development may continue with government cooperation.

Richmond is looking ahead not today and tomorrow but into the more distant future that it may be prepared to take care of the greatest merchant ships plying the seven seas, it is declared.

Citizens Committee Formed

Charles S. Renwick, chairman of the committee named by Mayor Mattie Chandler to form a Citizens Committee of One Hundred to handle the educational campaign leading up to the harbor bond election on August 23, reports that this committee is practically completed and that a group of progressive and aggressive citizens, men and women, have agreed to serve their city by acting on the committee. The membership represents practically every civic, fraternal and service club organization in the city as well as every leading industry.

Ford Prospect Bright

Fred Parr called attention to the fact that the Ford company had called for bids for a $5,000,000 plant at Long Beach and expressed the opinion that a duplicate of the Long Beach plant was assured Richmond though the original announcement indicated that the local plant would cost not less than $2,000,000.

"I feel sure that the Ford company intends to build in Richmond an assembly plant fully as large as that at Long Beach," he said.

Assurance of the full cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce in aiding the city to solve the transportation problem brought to an acute stage by the filing of an application by the Key System Traction Transit company for permission to abandon its 23rd street and 6th street car lines, was assured Mayor Mattie Chandler and other members of the City Council by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

Local Driver To Compete In San Jose Races

The "La Torraca Special," a four cylindered racing car which has won eleven of its fourteen races, will be driven by Joe La Torraca, 1327 Macdonald avenue, its builder, in the San Jose races next Sunday, June 26. La Torraca has repainted and overhauled the car since his last race on Armistice day in Reno where he won two races. The cream colored racer has a Chevrolet engine equipped with a Winfield carburetor.

It is capable of 5000 revolutions per minute, the driver, claims, and the car makes 110 miles an hour on curved track with no telling what on the straight-away. The front axle is of special construction as are the wire wheels.

The driver built the car three years ago, and has driven it in races at Petaluma, Reno, San Jose, and Fresno. He and his partner, F. Meyers, operate the Speedway garage.

Highway Protest Is Lodged With Election Officer

And now comes Charles J. Hagerty, election statistician for the secretary of state to profess that a new duty has apparently been added to his office if the petition of a number of Contra Costa residents to settle a highway dispute is to be considered.

He has received a formal protest from property owners of Contra Costa county, objecting to the proposal of the Highway commission to straighten the curve running to the Dam road on the highway from San Pablo to Oakland which has been the scene of several accidents.

The protest claims that the proposal still leaves a curve and that the amount to be expected is exhorbitant.

According to authority the state has already paid the people for the right of way, and the Lighthouse Inn has been moved back as one of the moves to straighten the highway.

Meanwhile Hagerty is at a loss to what to do with the petition.

Heiress Wins Annulment

HEIRESS FREED. Lucille Morrison Belden (below), Castoria heiress, loved her hubby, Charles Belden, until she found he deceived her about his age, and then she sued for annulment that has just been granted. She said it embarrassed her to be married to a man six years her junior.

Clarence Darrow Brands Capital Punishment Cruel

By CLARENCE DARROW
Noted criminal lawyer, written expressly for Universal Service.)

(Copyright 1927, Universal Service)

CHICAGO, June 21.—I'm against capital punishment because I think it is cruel and brutal and affects every one who has anything to do with it.

To put one in prison and fix a date when the state will take him out and kill him is the very refinement of cruelty.

Exquisite Torture

No animal and very few men ever resort to torture, and this is the most exquisite form of torture. No one ought to support capital punishment unless he himself would be willing to put a man to death, and no one would execute a human being excepting in the regular course of business or in great anger.

Prevent Crime?

The excuse that is usually made for capital punishment is that it prevents crime. But there is no evidence that it has any such effect.

Less than 125 years ago some 200 offenses in England were punishable by death. The hangings were done in broad daylight in the presence of thousands of persons, and more crimes were committed by those present on that day than on any other occasion.

Gradually offenders in England were reduced and crimes were correspondingly reduced in number.

Hangings Should Be Open

If capital punishment reduces crime it can only accomplish this by terrorizing those who might possibly commit crime. To have this result, executions should be open, so that every one would know and realize the consequences of a criminal act. But no civilized country today performs these executions in public. In most instances they are done at night in the presence of a very few.

No one could possibly show a moving picture of an execution, for the reason that this would suggest crime instead of preventing it. In some cities newspapers are only permitted to print the barest details. All of this has a tendency to prevent people from knowing about executions, and unless they know they will be terrified into virtue.

In spite of the temporary effect, the tendency of the age in all countries is toward smaller punishments; toward lessening the number of executions.

Education Solution

People are beginning to understand that the way to prevent crime is to begin on the education and training of children, so that they will have some reasonable way to make a living and obviate a condition where barbarous punishment must be visited upon a criminal after a criminal act has been committed.

Vasconcellos Rites Held In Crockett

Last rites for Jose Vasconcellos, who was killed Saturday night in an automobile crash near Pinole, were conducted yesterday morning at Crockett, with interment following at Benicia. Services were held at the I. D. E. S. lodge hall at 9:30 o'clock and half an hour later at the Crockett Catholic church. Vasconcellos had been in the employ of the California Hawaiian sugar company at Crockett for the past eight years. He is survived by a wife and two children in Portugal.

EMBERS OF WAR

Poland and Russia are at loggerheads over the murder of a diplomatic envoy of the Soviet.

National prides and international prejudices are getting in their same old work.

It would cool things off considerably if Soviet statesmen could be persuaded to manage their own affairs and leave others' alone.

It would be equally helpful if other nations treated Russia with kindness and sympathy instead of as a leprous beast unfit for human association.

After all, it is up to the people of every nation to decide for themselves the sort of government they like best.

If democratic monarchy suits England it is Russia's business to permit England to have a democratic monarchy.

If Bolshevism suits the Russians it is no part of the duty of any other nation to try to start an internal revolution against it.

Meddling in others' affairs has given birth to more misery and has brought about more deaths than any other single cause.

Tolerance is just what Europe needs very badly at this time.

—o—

Some of the internationalists who object to Uncle Sam's spending any of the taxpayer's money on his merchant marine are perfectly willing to have him cancel several billion dollars worth of European debts.

—o—

After all that entertainment in Europe Lindbergh got home-sick and we'll bet he was getting hungry for some real ham and eggs with apple pie a la mode.

Now that Walter Johnson is able to pitch again the National Capitol will refuse any longer to worry about the situation in China.

—o—

The best answer we know of to the pessimists who have been declaring that the younger generation is soft and rapidly going to the dogs is—"Lindbergh".

—o—

June ought to be made aviation month all over the world.

What it's all about

By PAUL ALLEN

SUBURBAN NEW YORK HAS devcloped a new game. Known as lawn golf. It bears the same relation to routine golf as German silver does to sterling silver. For equipment get any old sort of golf club, a couple of repainted balls and your own or your neighbor's lawn or back yard. Sink holes in the lawn at convenient distances and in them place small-sized earthenware flower pots, up to their rim. The object is to make the round of holes in as few strokes as possible.

I FIRST SAW THIS GAME played at the home of a friend in Port Washington, L. I. On the terraces and sidehill of his little estate he had laid out a five-hole lawn links (lawnx?)—as treacherous and insidious a course as ever a Scot devised. In shooting from one hole to another it is necessary to allow for dips and bumps in the ground. To those who like golf because it affords apportunities for cussing, let me recommend this little game as right on a par with its big brother.

"YOUR COLUMN" CONFIDES Jesse T. Morgan of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., "reminds me of P. T. Barnum. Which in turn reminds me that in the year 1879 Mr. Barnum was sitting in a barber's chair in New York when the barber said: 'I have a friend who has a cherry-colored cat.' Said Barnum, 'I'll give you $1,000 for a cherry-colored cat. Get it.' The man went out, and soon returned with a box, which he opened. Barnum said, 'That is a black cat.' The owner replied, 'Yes, so it is: the color of black cherries.' Barnum paid him the $1,000. Now, what do I get?" What kind of a cat have you?

IN THIS DAY, WHEN YOUTH [illegible] everything is waits I propose a round of applause for a [illegible] known as Donald [illegible]

Against all sorts of youthful competition, this ancient equine of twelve winters won the championship for polo mounts at the annual Westchester Horse Show. We republish this bit of news to cheer up human patriarchs of 12 who might have felt that they were being rushed pretty hard.

'TIS A SAD, SAD WORLD, with little hope, if you believe a writer in this month's North American Review. The article assumes that people are more wicked than they ever have been before. It adds that methods of instruction are superficial today, and concludes that the whole generation is addicted to thrills.

I THINK IT WOULD BE NO hard job to prove that 1927 people are no worse than people of any previous age, and are in some ways becoming better and better every day and in every way.

I think that education has always been superficial and that it is less so today than it ever has been. There are, of course, many superficial people, and among them are those who write articles based on prejudices instead of facts.

I think that people are attracted by thrills today, but no more, and to no worse effect, than in previous ages.

Why "Miss America" Leads The World In Skin Beauty

At a recent international beauty contest in which beauties from every country in the world competed, the American girl won. There was a French girl, an Italian beauty, a Spanish senorita, a German girl, an English girl and hundreds of others.

But the loving cup went to an American girl.

Which only proves that our boast of the beauty of the American is not exaggerated. Visitors who comes to our shores may dislike America's skyscrapers, our crowded subway—but they join in praise of young American womanhood.

She is athletic, but does not overdo it the way her British sister is inclined to. Despite her national milk and honey skin, the English girl sometimes forgets to undo the damage that her harsh winds and burning sun can do to tender complexions.

The American girl understand little ways of helping nature. But she does not use cosmetics to excess the way her French sister does. The French girl, with her heavily shadowed eyes of purple, covered with layer on layer of heavy liquid powder, with her heavily beaded lashes, that disappear in black streams down her face when it rains, is not subtle in her make-up and she needs the brilliant evening lights, or the rose shadows of shaded lights, to bring out her beauty.

But the American girl, under all kinds of lights and under all circumstances, has the vibrant sparkling coloring that only health can bring.

And here is the lesson, way down at the end.

Learn to assist nature in making you beautiful, rather than covering up the defects. Covering up bad complexion with layers of powder will only make it worse. Get at the root of the trouble and let fresh air and proper food bring the results.

Let you beauty and attractions be genuine—not false and only paint deep.

Row, Girls, Row! The Oars Will Melt Loose Flesh!

By LADY BEATRICE GREY

I am going to let you in on a little secret, girls! If you really are anxious to reduce and to retain the graceful contour you will achieve after you have melted away the extra avoirdupois with exercise, don't devote yourself entirely to exercises "designed for women." Get busy nd play at the men's games.

Yes, that's just what I mean.

Years ago, when girls took to tennis, the men felt squeamish about it. Many men who wielded a racquet were regarded as slightly effeminate. But the girls who were in the know knew this was not so.

Today tennis is recognized, and has been for years, as a game more exacting and more strenuous than baseball.

Now, girls, the men really stole that game from you.

So, get busy and steal something from them.

What we have in mind is an exercise that few women now enjoy, rowing.

If there ever was an exercise designed to make a woman's form graceful and to place firm flesh on a girlish form, rowing is it.

Of course, it has its drawbacks. There's the sun to consider. But there are ways of defeating the sun. And the wonderful exercise you get from rowing the boat more than repays you for the sunburn, tan or freckles you may pick up.

Try it, girls!

As you row along you will almost feel the loose flesh tighten and the fat melt away.

Try it, girls, it's a marvelous means of reducing.

Mrs. Kate Y.: There's a special knack in acquiring an even, becoming tan. There's a technique that will save you many hours of pain. Let your skin get accustomed to the sun's rays gradually. Never stay in the sun too long or you will get a real burn that carries in its wake great pain and torture, but if you let your skin accustom itself gradually you will take on an even coat of sunburn without drying the skin and causing it to peel.

Esther R.: The reason your hair is sticky after bathing in salt water is because you neglect to rinse it carefully in fresh pure water. To keep the hair from getting wet, many girls wear a tight band of chamois skin under the swimming cap. After a salt water swim, put your head under a fresh water shower before drying it, always.

Questions concerning beauty building through physical culture will receive the personal attention of Lady Grey, beauty culturist, and should be signed by the writer's full name and address, which will not be used without permission. Address her, care of this newspaper.

The Smartest Thing My Dog Ever Did

One day as my mother was hanging out wash our little poodle wanted a drink of water. Being used to making a noise with her tin cup when she wanted a drink, she rolled it around in the house for a while while my mother finished hanging out the wash and was talking with a neighbor.

Jiggs, which is our dog's name, became tired of waiting and picked up the tin cup up in her mouth, carried it out and laid it at my mother's feet as much as to say, "come give me a drink."

Of course, your dog does smart things. Tell the "Dog Editor."

WHEN I FORGOT

While I was visiting my friend her tiny daughter made a "flower" for my coat. It consisted of rags, thread, three or four buttons and certainly one would never guess it was a flower. She worked diligently and to please her I pinned it to my coat lapel, intending to throw it away when I went out the door.

When I reached home I found the reason for the smiles that had come my way on the subway and street. I still wore my buttonniere of rags, thread and buttons!

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America from Killanmaul, Ireland. They follow Emmett Murtough, to whom Sheila is betrothed. Neither Kildare or Murtough will hold steady jobs and Sheila goes to work as a waitress. She makes friends with the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough joins a bootlegging gang and is involved with a cabaret girl. The gang plans to unload $150,000 worth of contraband.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

At Clarice's invitation Murtough joined a party of two men and two women in evening dress and as the drinks began to be served more and more rapidly, Murtough's tongue was loosened. One of the women was particularly anxious to know "the inside" of "bootlegging" and professed the utmost admiration for the men who dared law and death to engage in it.

"It's really as romantic as in the days of the real pirates," she said. "Just think what men must go through to unload ships at sea and all that."

"Oh, there's lots of excitement if that's what ye' mean," Murtough said, "but there's not so much danger on the water as there is when the stuff has to be driven over land. At sea there's a chance of being caught by a revenue cutter, an' they'd blow ye' to pieces if ye didn't come to, but on land ye' run up against not only the government men, but hi-jackers an' grafters an' the local police an' state police too. Everybody's against ye' on land. Why, only tonight—"

"Emmett!" Clarice squeezed his hand in warning but the Murtough was flattered by the attention of the woman who was listening so intently and the mood for boasting was on him. He told the story of the hold-up by the "agents" and the graft that was paid to them. He put himself in the shoes of Devlin and he let it be known with many reiterations, just how clever he had been in realizing that the tactful method of paying out a little money was better than to stand a chance of a real arrest and the confiscation of the automobiles and cargo if it proved that the men were honest enforcement men.

"And who do you work for," queried one of the men to whom the recital seemed endless and boring.

"Mannie—", Clarice stopped him at the word.

"Emmett, they don't care who you work for, they're just interested in the fun you have."

"That's true, but I wondered if it was for one of the big gangs about which we read in the papers. That was all," explained the guest. It was plain that this was the truth for the woman who had shown such a deep interest added that they were from the West and just "slumming" through the night clubs. The host of the table called for a check and with polite farewells to Murtough and Clarice they left. Shortly afterward the manager told the girl that she could go home.

"Where shall we go," Murtough asked when they were on the sidewalk. "I'd like a couple of more."

"Let's go down to Corrigan's and I'll eat a sandwich. I'm hungry. They don't let us girls eat there, no matter if we're invited."

Murtough was at the danger line. He had enjoyed an audience and now he wanted to talk, he wanted to be thought the big man, the man who was in big business and who was to make thousands. Clarice played up to him as she always did and by the time Murtough had escorted her to her home, Clarice had learned definitely, not only that Emmett worked for Mannie Clocker, but the names of the men who were associated with him, and last but not least the news of the arrival of the ship with its $150,000 cargo. Murtough had boasted gloriously of the part he would play after the landing and Clarice learned all the details which had been revealed at Clocker's landing station. This was more news than the mysterious "Gus" could possibly want, she thought. When would "Gus" call at the Castle for the information and how soon would he pay her the $5,000 he had promised?

CHAPTER X

Idle Boasts Are Boomerangs

Emmett Murtough was a sick man when he awakened that evening. Not only was he ill physically, but he recalled with no little misgivings that he had talked a great deal the night before, and he could not remember how much of importance he had divulged. He feared that he may have revealed details of Clocker's plans which, if learned, would be punished only as the head of the bootleg ring knew how to punish. Dismissal and a sound thrashing by a couple of thugs was the usual portion with a warning to stay out of the vicinity of Clocker's district. Emmett decided to quiet his conscience by calling for Sheila at the restaurant.

Sheila was delighted to see him. The change in Emmett had pleased her mightily and she was anxious in turn to do all she could to help him in his ambitions, ambitions which he had confided while he was lying at her home injured. Sheila gaily invited him to take her for a walk through Central Park after her work was finished at Nick's.

She chattered happily, told him in all detail about hearing the announcement of the fights at the Garden round by round, speculated upon the marvels of the radio, and Murtough forgot his fears and recounted his night drives along lonely roads. With an Irishman's true blarney he painted the sky with bright stars and described the eerie night scenery as he sped by in his "express" truck.

The West End Club dance was to be held on the next Saturday night and Murtough promised her a glorious time and told her of the elaborate plans he had heard were being made for the affair. Everybody in the district would attend and even the Mayor and the Governor might drop in for a little while. It was to be broadcast also as one of the important political functions of the fall.

"Ah, Emmett, an' there's a change for the good come over ye here recent," said Sheila softly as they turned their steps back toward the entrance of the Park at the Circle. "Ye are softer an' gentler than ye' used to be when I first come over here."

"'Tis due to you entirely," responded Murtough, carried away by the spell of her presence. "'Tis due to you and nothing else."

"I'm glad, for sometimes I felt that maybe I was a bit strongheaded to be quarreling with you an' father all the time about yer business. After all, Emmett, ye are a man an' I guess perhaps ye know yer own business best at times."

"I'm doing well now, Sheila, but I want to do better yet."

"An' do ye think sometimes of the question ye asked me back there in Killanmaul just before ye came away?"

"Indeed an' indeed I do. 'Tis only that I want ye should have what ye should be having before we go to the priest," he said.

"I believe ye, Emmett, an' as I told ye, if when ye have made good as ye wish, ye put the question to me, I'll give ye my answer."

"But why can't ye promise now, Sheila?" he pleaded.

"Would ye want me to; wouldn't ye rather be free an' with no strings tied to ye' until ye have done what ye wished?"

"Give me yer promise now, Sheila. It will help me to get on for I'll be thinking all the time of ye' an' that ye are waiting an' hoping for me to make good."

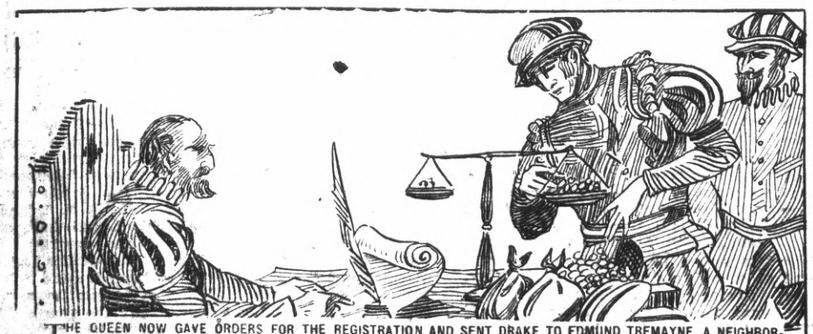

"Then I do, Emmett," she said simply, and turned to his arms there in the shadows of the trees. They were silent until they reached Sheila's home, Sheila content in having done what she believed was not only her duty to the boy who had come from Killanmaul, but what her love dictated.

Emmett was not so sure as his mind reverted to his other associates. Sheila would undoubtedly learn the truth about his "business" some day; if they were married by that time there was little that she could do about it, but if they were not, Emmett knew full well the scorn with which she would treat a law-breaker. Could he take the chance? He had, as a matter of fact, so that was all there was to it. But there was Clarice, and he surmised that she might be a spiteful creature if she was aroused and might make him trouble if there was cause. These complications, however, must be faced as they came, he decided.

Clarice hugged the information Murtough had poured out to her breast like a "fence" miserly guarding precious stones until he could find a buyer.

Men Who Made the World — SIR FRANCIS DRAKE — By Dr. Elliot Shoring, The Noted Historian

THE QUEEN NOW GAVE ORDERS FOR THE REGISTRATION AND SENT DRAKE TO EDMUND TREMAYNE, A NEIGHBORING MAGISTRATE, WHO WAS PUT IN CHARGE OF THE AFFAIR. IN A CONFIDENTIAL LETTER THE QUEEN INSTRUCTED TREMAYNE NOT TO BEGIN THE REGISTRATION UNTIL DRAKE HAD BEEN LEFT ALONE WITH THE TREASURE. "TO TAKE WHAT HE MIGHT" FOR HIS COMPANY AND HIMSELF. DRAKE TOOK SOME TEN THOUSAND POUNDS FOR HIMSELF AND MORE FOR HIS CREW. AFTER WHICH THE TREASURE WAS DULY REGISTERED. DRAKE'S UNPRECEDENTED VOYAGE SO CAPTURED THE IMAGINATION OF THE PEOPLE OF ENGLAND THAT HE WAS THE OUTSTANDING FIGURE OF THE DAY. PEOPLE BEGAN TO TAKE SIDES FOR AND AGAINST HIM. SOME SUPPORTED HIM LOYALLY, OTHERS TRIED TO DISCREDIT HIM WITH TALES OF CRUEL TREATMENT OF HIS CREW: OF MUTILATING PRISONERS; OF HAVING OVER-BEARING WAYS AS A COMMANDER. SINISTER REMARKS WERE MADE ABOUT THE DOUGHTY AFFAIR. BUT THE PEOPLE MADE HIM THEIR HERO.

DESPITE ALL THE UPROAR AND THE SPANISH PROTESTS, IN APRIL OF 1851, QUEEN ELIZABETH GAVE UNMISTAKABLE EVIDENCE OF HER APPROVAL OF DRAKE. FIRST, HE WAS SENT TO PLYMOUTH FROM WHERE HE BROUGHT THE TREASURE TO BE DEPOSITED IN THE TOWER OF LONDON. THE PEOPLE WERE DELIGHTED BY THE SIGHT OF SUCH ENORMOUS RICHES. GREAT THRONGS OF PEOPLE VISITED THE GOLDEN HIND, NOW ANCHORED IN THE THAMES AND MARVELLED AT THE STAUNCH, LITTLE VESSEL.

ON THE 4TH OF APRIL, THE QUEEN, IN FULL STATE REGALIA, VISITED THE GOLDEN HIND AND THREW DOWN THE GAUNTLET TO THE KING OF SPAIN, WHO DEMANDED DRAKE'S HEAD, BY KNIGHTING THE NAVIGATOR. THE EXACT AMOUNT OF DRAKE'S TREASURE WAS NEVER LEARNED. NONE WAS RESTORED TO SPAIN. DRAKE'S PRINCIPLES RECEIVED PART OF IT AND THE STATE THE REST. TREMAYNE'S REGISTRATION SHOWED A TOTAL OF NEARLY FIVE TONS OF TREASURE, DELIVERED TO THE TOWER OF LONDON. ACCORDING TO OTHER REPORTS DRAKE SAILED FROM THE COAST OF PERU WITH TWO AND ONE-HALF MILLION POUNDS OF TREASURE IN ENGLISH MONEY, NOT COUNTING UNREGISTERED JEWELS. DRAKE NOW BECAME A TREMEDOUSLY POPULAR FIGURE AND ALL ENGLAND WAS ABLAZE WITH HIS NAME.

Conrad Nagel, erstwhile romantic hero of the screen, romps through hilariously comic trials and tribulations in "There You Are," latest development of his new trend toward whimsical comedy, and one of the funniest screen plays of the year, now being shown at the Richmond theatre. Nagel plays the hero of an elopment beset by such difficulties as a pursuing father, backed up by the New York police force, is saddled with a strange baby that he can't explain to his bride, and many other difficulties, all of which make laughter. Edith Roberts plays the heroine in the new story, produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Gwen Lee, Philips Smalley, Gertrude Bennett and other well known players appear.

Other film features on the same program include "Watch Out", a Bobby Vernon comedy; and the latest Fox News. Coming Friday and Saturday, Tom Mix in "No Man's Gold."

Wu In Pensive Moment

Chinese Actor Tells Of Theatre In Native Land

HONORABLE WU!

This Chinese lad will be seen at the California theatre next Saturday afternoon and evening the star of Fanchon and Marco's gorgeous "Chinese Nights."

China's Greatest and Most Youthful Actor describes its theatre as it is in China. No vaudeville or variety, but classics are given time and again.

No clapping or raucous cheers, merely the murmurings of the audience in a rhymical cadence with the orchestration which rises to significant climaxes with the action of the play is an actor's tribute in China.

For as the Honorable Wu, the star of Fanchon and Marco's gorgeous "Chineses Nights", would say, "Flattery is fatal to one's modesty and is to be condemmed."

He whimsically adds that with the wearing away of century old political traditions has came a revolutionary move no doubt sponsored by the troupers, to pay performers an additional 25 cents for each worth-while hand clapping elicited from the house. With proper brotherly co-operation out in front an actor stands some chance even over there of rivalling Hollywood's pay envelopes. Women's matinees, now unknown, may even come about.

There is no vaudeville in China. A race deeply cultured in training they incline toward the classic dramas that have been handed down from generation to generation. With reverence they listen to the sparkling wit or comforting philosophy of their Shakespeares, Goldonis and Molieres.

A theatre devotee in the land of the lotus and plum blossoms goes to his playhouse not for the novelty and new daring dialogue, but for the enjoyment of old pleasures—to revel anew in a fragrant song from the garden of Li-Po's exquisite verse or to ponder on the wise words of Mencious, the Confucian Philosopher.

Catering to this popular taste the wise showman, for China has her Barnums, puts the meat of his offering between 8 and 11 o'clock although the play runs continuously from 7 until midnight. A ticket holder comes in and out at will, receiving a door check as identification. Men and women sit apart as in Quaker prayer meetings.

Not padded arm chairs but wooden benches are the seats.

Melon seeds are a favorite confection.

SHE KAYOS 'EM DOES CLARA AT THE CALIFORNIA

Dynamic Clara Bow has hit the bell again but it with a force that kept last night's audience at the California Theatre entranced thrilled and laughing from start to finish in her newest Paramount picture "Rough House Rosie." "Rough House Rosie" is one of those all to infrequent photoplays that set out to be nothing more or less than one hundred per cent entertainment and accomplish their purpose.

This Saturday Evening Post story by Nunnally Johnson opens with a beach carnival, proceeds to a gay carbaret with Clara leading her "Six Roughnecks" in a novel little dance, moves to a fashionable country club and a gay party of the upper social set and closes with a rousing fight, as Clara at the ringside urges her big boy friend, Joe Hennessey, on to victory and the middleweight championship. It's a great picture, a great show and one that's well worth seeing twice.

Reed Howes, Arthur Housman, Doris Hill, John Miljan, Douglas Gilmore and Henry Kolker head [illegible] Frank Strayer directed. Max Marcin made the clever adaption. The screen play was written by Louise Long and Ethel Doherty.

Other features on the same program include "Wife Shy", a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Merry Go Around of Travel"; International News, and Larry Canelo at the organ.

Damage Suit For $20,000 Settled

While a jury panel was in the corridor of the court room awaiting summons to hear the case, settlement was effected yesterday of a $20,000 damage suit instituted by Wilba B. Wolle and Hary J. Wolle of Crockett, against A. Britto. San Pablo dairyman, for injuries Mrs. Wolle sustained in an automobile collision on the Martinez-Bay Point highway on December 19, 1926. Amount of settlement was not made known. Wolle was also seeking $300 for damage to his machine. The Wolles charged negligent driving by Britto caused the accident. Mrs. Wolle suffered severe spinal injury and nervous shock. R. H. Wight appeared for the plaintiffs.

After June 27, it will swing out into space again not to come into view for five and a half years. Richmond people should be able to locate the comet in the northeast portion of the sky near the star Vega.

ORDINANCE NO. 601

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 405 OF THE CITY OF RICHMOND.

The Council of the City of Richmond do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Ordinance No. 405 of the City of Richmond is amended as specified in the following sections.

SECTION 2 Section 57 of said Ordinance No. 405 is amended to read as follows:

Section 57. A redemption of the property sold may be made by the owner or any party interested at any time prior to the filing of suit for said taxes against the owner by the city, in the manner hereinafter provided.

SECTION 3. Section 59 of said Ordinance No. 405 is amended to read as follows:

Section 59. When the tax collector discovers that any property has been assessed more than once for the same year or has been erroneously assessed, he must collect only the tax justly due and make return of the facts, by his certificate, to the auditor and the Council. The Council shall thereupon direct the auditor to cancel such erroneous or double assessment by an entry on the margin of the assessment book, and also upon the delinquent list, should such erroneous or double assessment be carried therein; provided, however, that no cancellation of an erroneous or double assessment shall be made in any case until the taxes, penalties, costs and other charges by law against the property on one of such assessments shall have been paid.

SECTION 4. Section 60 of said Ordinance No. 405 is repealed.

SECTION 5 Section 61 of said Ordinance No. 405 is amended to read as follows:

Section 61. Whenever property assessed for taxes is sold to the city as herein provided, it shall be assessed each subsequent year for taxes in the same manner as if it had not been so sold; provided that no further sale shall be made to the city until the land has been redeemed from the previous sale. No person shall be permitted to redeem from any such sale except upon payment of the amount of any and all subsequent assessments, costs, fees, penalties and interest.

SECTION 6. Section 62 of said Ordinance No. 405 is amended to read as follows:

Section 62. In all cases where real estate has been sold or may hereafter be sold for delinquent taxes to the city, the person whose estate has been or may hereafter be sold, his heirs, executors, administrators or other successors in interest shall at any time after the same has been sold to the city, have the right to redeem such real estate by paying to the tax collector the amount of taxes, penalties and costs due thereon at the time of such sale, with interest on the aggregate amount of said taxes at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum from date of sale to date of redemption; and also all taxes that were a lien upon said real estate at the time said taxes become delinquent and also all unpaid taxes of every description assessed against the property for each year since the sale, or, if not so assessed, then upon the value of the property as assessed in the year nearest the time of such redemption, with interest from the first day of July following each of said years, respectively, at the same rate, to the time of redemption; and also all costs and expenses of such redemption, and penalties as follows: to-wit:

Ten (10) per cent if redeemed within six (6) months from the date of sale.

Twenty (20) per cent if redeemed within one (1) year therefrom.

Forty (40) per cent if redeemed within three (3) years therefrom.

Forty-five (45) per cent if redeemed within four (4) years therefrom.

Fifty (50) per cent if redeemed within five (5) years or any greater number of years therefrom.

The penalty shall be computed upon the amount of each year's taxes in like manner, reckoning from the time when the property would have been sold for the taxes of that year, if there had been no previous sale thereof.

The auditor shall on the application of the person desiring to redeem make an estimate of the amount to be paid and shall give such person a certificate in duplicate of the amount specifying the several items thereof, which certificates shall be delivered to the tax collector.

Upon receipt of the moneys necessary to redeem as shown by said certificate the tax collector shall endorse the receipt thereof on each of said duplicate certificates, and shall deliver one thereof to the redemptioner and the other to the Auditor and thereupon any sale that may have been made to the city of such property shall become and be null and void, and all right, title and interest in and to said property acquired by the city under and by virtue of such sale shall cease and determine.

It shall thereupon be the duty of the auditor to cancel such sale on the margin of the record in his office, and upon demand of the redemptioner the auditor shall issue a certificate duly acknowledged specifying the fact of such redemption, the date thereof, the description of the property, and the fact that all delinquent taxes, costs, penalties and charges due the city thereon have been paid.

SECTION 7. The first paragraph of Section 62½ of said ordinance No. 405 as added by Ordinance No 521 is amended to read as follows:

Section 62½. In all cases where a lot, piece or parcel of land contained in any assessment has been sold or may hereafter be sold for delinquent taxes to the City of Richmond, a partial redemption may be made, separately from the whole assessment, of any such lot, piece or parcel of land as follows:

DEMPSEY SIGNS FOR TITLE GO WITH SHARKEY

NEW YORK, June 22.—Jack Dempsey, bronzed and hardened by ten weeks of conditioning in the Ventura Mountains of California, came to New York today and within two hours reached a complete agreement with Tex Rickard, for the comeback campaign.

The former heavyweight champion definitely accepted terms for an "elimination" 15-round match with Jack Sharkey, to be fought at the Yankee Stadium July 21, and reached a compromise understanding on terms for a possible return title fight with Gene Tunney in September.

What the compromise called for was not revealed but it is understood Dempsey, if he wins from Sharkey, will get considerably more than any challenger or ex-champion ever received for a title bout.

The Rickard-Dempsey agreement also provides that if the erstwhile "Manassa Mauler" shatters precedent by winning back the heavyweight crown he will defend it under the New York promoter's direction not later than September 1928.

Sportsmen Hold Discussion On Conservation

California ducks are being exterminated according to Thomas Shea, who addressed the Richmond Sportsmens club last night at their meeting in Pythian castle. Shea covered the progress of game conservation in California for the last thirty years.

Harry Skow was appointed chairman of the committee for the extermination of bluejays in his district. The jays rob quail nests and are a nuisance. When the club goes on its shooting trips it will endeavor to "get" the offending birds.

The Sportsmen had a banquet last night under the direction of C. L. Mitchell, who is head of the entertainment committee. The membership committee of the Sportsmen welcomes any fellow sportsmen in the district, according to William Arnold, who heads the committee. The club meets the second and fourth Wednesday nights of each month in Pythian castle.

Willis Butler's Barrel House aggregation climbed into a tie with the Refiners for first place in the Standard Oil league by trimming the Mechanics, 6 to 4, yesterday afternoon at the First street ball park.

Two veteran twilight league pitchers opposed each other on the mound, Paris Buttisbach twirling for the Barrel House, while Dutch Kogler did the pitching chores for the losers.

It was a tough game for Kogler to lose, the chunky Dutchman fanning ten Barrel House sluggers and allowing seven hits to his opponent's nine. Buttisbach also pitched a nice game, being handicapped to some extent by his teammates' poor work in the field.

The Barrel House tossers took a first-inning lead which they maintained to the end. Yore opened the contest with a single and advanced to second when Butler laid down a bunt and was safe when the play was made for Yore at second. Snavely also was safe on a bunt, filling the bases. Gene Fitzgerald then came through right nobly with a double to score Yore and Butler.

Another Barrel House tally resulted in the second spasm when Buttisbach walked, advanced on Yore's sacrifice, stole third base and scored on Lamarra's error.

The Barrel House tossers ran their total to five runs when they tallied twice more in the fourth frame. After Buttisbach had fanned, Billy Yore gained a life on Bartoli's error. Butler's single sent him to second, whence he scored a minute later on Gene Fitzgerald's single. Butler stole home with the second run of the inning.

The final Barrel House run came in the sixth when Buttisbach pasted the ball over the right field fence for a home run.

After being held scoreless for four innings by Buttisbach the Mechanics rallied strongly in the closing cantos to score four runs. They tallied twice in the fifth on singles by Kogler and Murray and an error by Ernie Peters. O'Rourke's double to left and a single by Velosa accounted for another Mechanic run in the sixth. The final run for the losers came in the seventh frame when Lamarra singled and went to second when Ray Fitzgerald allowed the hit to go through his legs. Lamarra then caught the Barrel House infield napping and took third, scoring later on Lane's single.

TOMMY ARMOUR

Maybe Silence Is Golden In Golf

The Jack Sharkey of golf has been knocked out by the Harry Greb of golf.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper, born in England, but now of Sacramento, Cal., was the Jack Sharkey of golf. Like Sharkey he has admitted his excellence ever since he broke into major league golfing circles.

Tommy Armour, almost blinded in one eye while serving as a major in the British tank corps during the World War, was handicapped in vision just as Harry Greb, the Pittsburgh Windmill, was handicapped during his last years in the ring. Greb used a glass eye the last three years he fought, but you could never prove it by his opponents.

Armour, one of the greatest money players in the game, came from behind to clip Cooper while the latter was leading by a stroke four holes from home. The talkative Cooper didn't have enough left to stave off Armour's brilliant drive to a splendid win.

It was a great finish to a championship which marked the temporary eclipse of Bobby Jones, the Atlantan. Jones found that even he could not win a championship without constant practice. Absence makes the pars grow harder.

It proved something else, too—this championship. That is that golf courses can be planned to balk the greatest players in the world. Only two players cracked 72 at Oakmount, the Pittsburgh course which is probably the toughest test of golf on either side of the ocean.

For the first time in quite a stretch of years, American home-breds were left severely out of it in the last chapter of the United States open. Cooper was born in England and Armour in Scotland, although both pointed up their games under the American conditions of strenuous competition.

Rhode Island Fan Says a Few

When two major league teams swap players in mid-season the usual aftermath is a wave of caustic criticism from partisans of each organization, either approving the deal or condemning it as a bonehead trade that robs their home town of its last chance of capturing the pennant.

This writer recently became unwise enough to state that McGraw had been outsmarted by the Boston forces when he surrendered Farrell, McQuillan and Greenfield for Larry Benton, Zack Taylor and Herby Thomas.

And already this column has been put on the pan by Laurence L. Hardy of Providence, R. I., who claims the Giants have profited immensely by the transaction. In all fairness to Mr. Hardy we are willing to let him speak his piece:

"As an ardent baseball fan and follower of both the Boston and New York clubs, your comment in today's Sport Whirl about the recent trade between National League teams is away off color," he starts.

"How you can chirp about Jawn getting an old-fashioned run around from Boston is beyond 999 out of 1,000 fans in this section. I cater to innumerable baseball fans and the unanimous opinion favors New York to reap most of the gain.

"Larry Benton is equal to Farrell, McQuillan and Greenfield with a few thousand bucks thrown in to boot. A consistent winner with a losing club, he!" burn up the league with the hitting power of the walloping Giants behind him. I'll bet he'll be the leading pitcher for Jawn at the end of the season and maybe the leagues.

"McQuillan will not be able to produce the punch with a losing club that has little hitting power. He ought to make a fair coach but the Braves don't need a coach. The Red Sox don't either. Your New Yorkers found that out when you were presented with McQuillan in his prime.

And then from Boston you also got Pennock, Bush, Ruth, Jones, Barnes and quite a few others.

Says Boston Always Gets Stuck

"When did Boston ever get anything else but stuck in a New York deal? Next time a deal is pulled off it ought to be for the bat boy, and we'll send along the Custom House tower and Navy Yard with Jack Sharkey and some beans and fish thrown in for good measure.

"Then you'll probably write up about Jawn or the Colonel getting as Farrell was Jawn wouldn't consider $500,000 to little for him. That's my opinion after watching both play in the recent series at Boston.

"If the Braves get the best of the deal, I'll give you a box of cigars at the end of the season, and not cheroots either, but your own best choice. Yours for more baseball."

JOE DUNDEE TELLS OF RISE TO TITLE

By JOE DUNDEE
(Samuel Lazzara)
As Told to JAMES W. JENNINGS

Somehow, no matter how famous the boxers I vanquished, I could not get a big bout outside of Baltimore or down South. Max could not crash through the boxing promoters in New York or Philadelphia, though I got a start in Philly after I whipped some of their topnotchers in Baltimore.

The bout with Sailor Friedman occurred in my home town in 1924 The Sailor had fought the best lightweights in the country, including Benhy Leonard, Lew Tendler, Johnny Dundee, Joe Welling, etc. Even I had heard of him.

Waxman had the city placarded as though a circus was coming to town.

The Sailor arrived about a week before the match and he was a satorial knockout with his gray check suit, pleated silk shirt, nifty brown bonnet, screeching scarf, colored clocked hose and shining patent leather pumps.

When I was introduced to him I had just come in from the gym. I never was a Beau Brummel and always doll up in quiet garments. This day I had on an old soiled suit, a sweater and a cap pulled over my eyes.

Sailer Puts on the Ritz

We shook hands and I noticed that Sailor pulled out a silk handkerchief, wiped the mitt I had squeezed and then tossed the nose duster away.

He crossed his legs, leaned back in his chair and sneeringly asked Waxman is "If I was it?"

"Too bad", said the Sailor. "I'll carry him along the distance for your sake, Max, and won't hurt him much."

The following day the temperamental Friedman decided he would not fight, claiming the go would not draw. He also said he was short by advancing $200.

The Sailor whose weakness was a fancy for silk shirts, spent the $200 for shirts. He used to change his raiment three times a day.

Nobody ever accused Baltimore of being a slow town, but the Sailor told Max he was homesick and this required another cash advance.

Next time I ran across him he was sitting with two beautiful damsels, worshipers who had followed him from New York.

Two days before the bout he absolutely refused to fight and Waxman got in touch with his manager Dick Curley.

Curley called Friedman to the wire and whatever he said to the Sailor made him as meek as a dead lamb.

Yes, Friedman would fight, even if the bout was postponed for a year. Maybe some of you folks know Curley.

The bout was a sell-out and the Sailor was in rare good humor.

My manager told me to sail into the Sailor as soon as the bout started. I did and Friedman who was becoming winded at the fast pace, told me to take it easy and I might go the limit.

Victorious Over Sailor

Supposedly the toughest lightweight of the day, the Sailor was a cinch. He did not look pretty after the scrap.

Two of the hardest fights I fought happened just previous to my meeting with Friedman.

The quarrels with Ever Hammar and Joe Willing.

Both had me on the floor for long counts and, as any Baltimore fan will tell you, I fight ten times better after I have been floored, and punched out a victory over each man.

I now gravitated between Philadelphia and Baltimore. I became a favorite with the Quaker City fans when I bested Bud Christiano Joe Tiplitz, Ted Marchant, Andy Chaney, fought Alex Hart three times, a draw with Lew Tendler and knocked out Nat Goldman twice.

Breaking into New York was like running for President on a prohibition ticket.

My First Bout In New York

At least I was paired with Johnny Clinton, of Brooklyn, in a twelve rounder at the Steaplechase, A. A. at Rockaway Beach in 1924.

The attendance was small, probably because there were four or five hundred peepholes in the wall of the building, and all the real cheering came from this unseen gathering.

I won and received $108. They told me New York was the city of big purses, but you could not convince me then.

Making the lightweight poundage was difficult for me and I frequently had to starve, steam and dry myself out to get down too that weight.

If ever I become too heavy for the welter class I will surrender the title rather than punish myself.

Remembering what happened to Joe Gans, I have an example of his case which proves that weight reducing is like cutting an artery.

Danger of Weight Making

I had an experience of my own of how dangerous this is when I entered the lightweight tournament in New York two years ago.

I had to do through all the agonizing weight reducing stunts and was so weak and tired that I knew I had made a mistake in agreeing to box in the tourney.

I fought Charley O'Connell of Buffalo and was winning the match when he floored me in the eighth round of a ten-rounder, and he hit me again before I got off the floor.

The referee, I think it was Jimmy Crowley, disqualified him and declared me the winner. Crowley left the ring when two of the boxing commissioners called him back reversed his decision and made us resume fighting. O'Connell was awarded the contest.

FURIOUS BOUTS BOOKED FRIDAY AT EL CERRITO

With Rudy Avileno, bantamweight champion of Manila and other cities of the Philipine Islands and Jos Vierra of Oakland as only one of the feature four round fights, a rattling card of thirty rounds of boxing is being billed at the El Cerrito Athletic Club this Friday night.

Avileno the Philipine Island champ, shows every indications in training of the boy he is. Like the original Pancho Villa who held the title before he died, Rudy is the speediest since Villa's days to be sent over.

The main event will be eight rounds. That good boy Bobby Ertle whos pleasing work always is a hit will essay to take on young Farrell of San Francisco. Farrell beat Ertle several years ago and Ertle is anxious to wipe out the defeat. From the way Ertle has been boxing recently at this club it looks as if he may get his revenge. Farrell has boxed the best and every fight he is in is a sure sign of a real battle.

Buddy Ryan the fast Pinole boy who knocked out Ray Walker his last start here will face Johnny Lawson, Oakland in the six round semi. Lawson fought a draw on the last card with speedy Billy Watson but many thought he really won. The Lawson-Ryan fight promises to be a fight that will be long remembered.

Sliff Hottenger of El Cerrito and Jos Ramos (colored) will supply the comedy fight of the night. Both are wild swingers but rugged and terrific hitters. Some one may be put to sleep in this bout.

Frisco Lenda, the little demon Filipino, who beat Johnny Lario the last show will take on Billy McBiegh of Vancouver in four rounds.

Benny Wagner will again act as referee.

A banner house is expected.

HEART TROUBLE Marvelously Relieved

While visiting her daughter here in Oakland, Mrs. W. H. Morton of Stockton was in such great pain due to Heart Trouble that it affected her left hand. She could neither walk nor rest with the slightest comfort. All the physicians whom she consulted expressed the opinion that she had not more than ten days to live. She truly seemed to be at the point of death when she took her first package of the Fong Wan Herbs. It was cooked for her at home, and that night she had the first rest after many weeks of terrible suffering. After four weeks of the Fong Wan Herb Treatment, she was able to return to her home in Stockton. From that city she has sent the following testimonal to the Fong Wan Herb Co.:

OWES HER LIFE TO FONG WAN HERBS

Stockton, Cal., March 21, 1927.
To the Fong Wan Herb Co.:
I have been a sufferer with valvular trouble of the heart for some time. I became so ill that my doctors, who were many, gave me but a week or ten days to live.

I decided to try the Fong Wan Herb Co., and to the amazement of all who attended me, I was able to walk into their office after taking the Herbs one week. I have now taken them four weeks and I not only have a good heart, but have also been helped in other ailments.

I cannot speak too highly of the Fong Wan Herbs, as I owe my life to them. I am very grateful to Fong Wan for his kindness.

judge gave his ruling in her favor.

In view of observiers, the case against the actress now hinges largely on the construction placed upon the asserted payment of $500 to the physician who attended Raymond. The state had charged in its opening statement that this sum was given to obtain a misleading report of the cause of Raymond's death. The state, however, has introduced no evidence bearing upon this assertion.

Concealment Is Denied

Leroy Bagley, undertaker who buried Raymond, called as a state witness, yesterday testified that no effort had been made to have the bruises on Raymond's body concealed. Similar testimony was given by the first witnesses called by the defense. These were John Sergel and Everett Gordon, embalmers employed by Bagley.

With the reading by the state yesterday of Miss Mackaye's testimony at Kelly's trial, it is believed that Miss Mackaye's appearance on the stand will be brief. She will testify only, according to present plans, regarding her dealings with Dr. Sullivan, and to deny the charge against her.

ROAD TO RUIN

(By Universal Service)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 22.—A suspended sentence was given Mrs. Dulcie Moore, of this city today when she pleaded guilty to a bootlegging charge. She sold the liquor to prevent her aged mother from going to the county infirmary, she told the judge. "I'd go through hell before I'd let her go to the poorhouse," the woman said.

LONG, LONG AGO!

LANCASTER, O., June 22.—While excavating today workmen dug up the charred wreck of the General Sanderson, a boat which burned here during the Civil War. The canal in which it burned later was abandoned and filled. The packet boat is said to have been the first used in Ohio that contained cabins with sleeping accommodations.

'Four Square, All White' Friends Describe Lindy

In all his eventful life as a boy, Col. Lindbergh, ever conquering new problems, ever at grips with peril, required the doctor but once.

The measles got him!

From "bull fighter" to "broncho buster."

And with his air mail flying chums his purse was ever open. "Why," he said once, "suppose they don't pay back—what's money between friends?"

Instead of being an "unsociable sort" Col. Lindbergh is what the West terms "downright heart warm," this chapter reveals.

"MOTHER" LINDBERGH'S OWN STORY

As Told By His Mother to ROBERT CAMPBELL

ARTICLE 14.

They have called Col. Charles Lindbergh the "unsocial sort"! Nothing could be farther from the truth. He's modest to the point of ruddy embarrassment, but underneath he's "heart warm quality folks."

"And as four-square and white as a brand new handkerchief," as the Western friends of his youth, who knew him best of all, describe him.

His first "companion" came at the age of 8, when a sheep dog on his father's farm "took up" with the boy and the two became inseparable chums on their daily excursions into the woods about the Lindbergh homstead in Minnesota.

And there was the ram with which he used to play "bull fight." When the ram charged the fence young Lindbergh was on the other side.

The ram would paw the ground and nurse its fence-bruised head and wonder how it was that he always missed. But it was all due to the fact that young Lindbergh knew how long it took a certain force to travel over a certain distance.

He was just "outsmarting the ram" with his better trained mind.

Young Lindbergh was going by set rule—the ram, like some flyers, was "running blind."

And when the ram lost the zest of the impromptu tilts, which to the poor ram seemed all too one-sided, young Lindbergh turned to horses, for the ram had reached the point when he lay down at the sight of the boy and no longer charged, as much as to say, "What's the use, he's too much for me. You can't beat him!"

Takes to Horses

Then he took to horses—the future colonel, not the ram. The ram was through.

"That was quite a strain on my nerves," said his mother, "but he kept at it and mastered broncho busting."

But animals became too tame. They lacked the "zip" that the youth demanded and his mind turned to mechanical things.

"And," says his mother, "he was never hurt and never hurt any one. He insisted on taking all the risk, and the only time we ever had to have a doctor for him was when as a little boy he had the measles."

But if the future "Air Ambassador of America," passed up girls he did not shun the companionship of boys. And he was very popular with them, despite his diffidence. At the start a few attempted to bully him, and young Lindbergh was forced to "stand up for himself."

After he had whipped those who harassed him they decided to give him a wide berth. In any event, they no longer attempted to "pick" on him.

"While he had the usual boy fights," says his mother, "they were not of such a nature that it was necessary for his father or me to interfere."

"He does not take strikingly after any of his relatives," says his mother. "He shows some characteristics of most of them, but in the main, Charles is just himself.

"And today he is still just the baby a mother loves in its crib, grown up to manhood. He is such a wonderful boy—a son that makes a mother proud to be a mother."

And Mrs. Lindbergh tells of his great fondness for pastries and pies—cookies and cakes. But he ever guarded his nerves—there were no copious drinks of coffee.

Water is his favorite beverage, "by choice."

"The colonel molded himself," she says with marked emphasis.

Col. Lindbergh is "free with his money"—to his friends. While he saved because his tastes were few, he was always "good for a loan among his fellow flyers.

Some repaid and some did not, but the money obligation never entered Col. Lindbergh's thoughts. To his mind it was unthinkable that a sum of money should come between friends. If they paid back, all hunky-dory, if they didn't, still hunky-dory. They were still welcome, those that settled and those that didn't with anything in his bill fold. Why not? Were they not brother flyers!

Constant Reader

Col. Lindbergh was a great reader. A reader of books that were instructive. The "hurdy-gurdy literature" of the day he had no use for. World events, problems, scientific subjects, travel, were the things for which he had an insatiable appetite.

And when not flying he was reading, not to pass the time away, for to him time was much too precious but to improve, to learn the how and why and when of this and that that interested him.

He knew for some weeks ahead that he was going to "hop" to Paris. He had spent long hours over his maps. He carried in his mind the location of every place on his objective horizon. He knew how far the various towns and hamlets and cities were from the seacoast. How far they were from one another. The mileage of the entire country.

The Elks hope to distribute these stickers to every motor car owner in Richmond.
